

Edible Express: May 2020.

In the month of May in previous years Edible York concentrated on the big plant out of young edibles at community gardens throughout the city. Planting this year is much reduced, but other activities have expanded. Here are the highlights.

Videos for home-schooling families and others looking for gardening ideas.

This month we have covered:

- potting on – seeds sown previously are moved on a stage,
- companion planting to make good use of space and deter harmful insects,
- sowing chives and spring onions seeds.

These videos have proved extremely popular via our facebook page, and have resulted in many new gardeners.

Seeds for some New Earswick and Foxwood residents.

This was inspired by Edible York's Seed Stations which require visiting in person. Joseph Rowntree Housing Trust asked Edible York to provide seeds and instructions so that these could be sent by post to tenants. Our trustees tracked down appropriate seeds at local shops. This was a big help for the many people who had to stay at home, and / or were without transport this month. JRHT covered the costs.

Just Giving set up for online donations.

To make it easier to donate money to Edible York, we are now using Just Giving to receive online donations. If you visit justgiving.com and search for Edible York, this is what you will see at the start.
